Embedding Learning Approaches That Help Every Student Flourish

Louka Parry

Education Changemakers

We know that young people grow and flourish when they are positively supported in all areas of their development. Yet too often system pressures are not working well for students and tend to narrow the focus of schools, rather than a balanced educational approach that focuses on the whole learner. This workshop focuses on tangible actions we can take as educators to ideate new approaches and build practical strategies to make learning better for us and our students.
